Celebrating the Generations

In spite of challenges from the weather, 2013 has seen some wonderful Sunday Jam's at the store. The old time jams bring lively dance music and some real old time dancing. Our last bluegrass jam gathered together bluegrass musicians from across the generations.

There is great new talent growing in Floyd, founded on the base created by our traditional musicians who know how to be serious about playing music, and at the same time how to have fun doing it. Come down to the store any Sunday afternoon from 2:00pm to 4:00pm to join in or to cheer the musicians on.

Sharing Stories & Songs

Old Time Musician Anna Roberts-Gevalt hosts the first Story and Song event of the season tomorrow, Saturday, March 23 at 7:30 PM. She will perform some of her favorite songs & ballads and share collected video footage and stories from her travels and experiences in Appalachia. Please note that due to unforeseen circumstances Lynn Coffey will not be able to attend this program as originally scheduled. Learn more about upcoming Story & Song events.

Thanks to Martin Guitar

When the folks at Martin Guitar heard about the Floyd Radio Show in a story about Elizabeth

LaPrelle on National Public Radio, they contacted us to see how they could support our efforts to bring some lively old time entertainment to our audiences. They have decided to be a sponsor for our monthly radio show. To thank them our radio show cast will be writing and performing some fun jingles about the Martin Company for the radio show. We are delighted that Martin continues to show its commitment to the music community and a concern for the development of new ventures and new talent.
